BODY OF RESISTANCE:

STILL

A Fashion Experienc by Cancer Culture

NYFWSeptember 2026

A living art exhibition
exploring the complex and emotional truth of life before and after a breast cancer diagnosis.

Stories. Art. Power.

THE PATIENT EXPERIENCE: What Participation Creates

- 01. Build confidence and self-expression
- 02. Connect with a supportive community
- 03. Increase visibility for patient experiences
- 04. Feel seen, valued, and represented

“Walking that runway changed everything. For the first time since cancer, I felt powerful in my body again. I wasn’t hiding. I wasn’t surviving. I was seen and I was fierce.” - Rachel Burns, 11-Year Stage III Survivor

AN EVENT THAT CHANGES EVERYTHING

RESEARCH PARTNER

This partnership enables synergies between two organizations with a shared commitment to empower patients and accelerate progress in the fight against MBC.

Shared Purpose

Cancer Culture has partnered with MBCure to fund the kind of research that should've happened decades ago

What We Fund

We are funding research with curative intent (YES, YOU READ THAT RIGHT!) for people living with metastatic breast cancer.

How We Do It

100% of every ticket sold and every dollar donated through our NYFW event will drive real progress at Memorial Sloan Kettering, UPenn, and Fox Chase.

Why We Do It

This targeted funding backs a collaborative effort, backing scientists who are all-in on discovering life saving therapies.

Press & Publicity

They're listening... and watching.

Cancer Culture's NYFW events have been featured in national press, local media, and advocacy platforms that don't shy away from telling the truth. Our raw approach gets attention from respected outlets to social change influencers.

Coverage includes:

- Over 3 MILLION views on New York Times
- Allure
- PEOPLE
- Yahoo Beauty
- Daily Mail
- Glamour UK
- The Purist
- Page Six & many MORE!

A collection of logos for various media outlets, including Allure, Daily Mail, The New York Times, People, Page Six, The Purist, and Glamour. The logos are arranged in a vertical stack on a dark purple background. Allure is at the top, followed by Daily Mail, The New York Times, People, Page Six, The Purist, and Glamour at the bottom. The logos are in white and black text, with some featuring additional details like "THE BEAUTY EXPERT" or "WELLNESS IS THE NEW LUXURY".

SPONSOR A MODEL

Sponsorship with us isn't background noise, It's front and center.

We don't bury logos in the back of the room. We put our sponsors on the runway. Your voice becomes part of the movement.

What that looks like:

- Sponsor a model on the runway
- Custom content & bold branding woven into our storytelling
- Social media features designed for engagement, not just visibility
- Playbill ads that land in the hands of changemakers

- On-site recognition
- Swag & signage that actually get seen, touched, and talked about

This is co-conspiracy, not checkbox charity!
